The beauty of the homes here to be found is nuticeable. They are very numerous, and it seems that in many instances the people vie with each other in the construction of these homes. And they are not only to be admired for their beautiful outside appearance, but many of them have on the interior all the comforts and conveniences you will find in any home in the land.

But one other fact that makes our city beautiful to those who have not been able to entirely enjoy the pleasures of this life, is its health. Many people who have arisen from beds of sickness, where they have been administered to by friends in the hope that they might recover, have come to Gainesville almost literally on their beds, and in a short time thrown their medicines to the dogs, arisen from their beds and have been restored to health through the healing influence of our excellent climate and pure Alachus avenue is one of the' most waters, which many declare have re-

RISING PRICE OF COTTON.

Henry Irving Dodge, in Public Opinion of December 9, says that Europe will bear the burden of the rising price of cotton, and that here there is potency of this tiny thing is incal tolable. For a long time resourceful minds have devoted themselves to multiplying its usefulness, with the result that today it enters basically into an incredible number of our industries, and through their ramifications has become the most active factor in our commerce. Not alone in new ways, but in new fields, does this heaven-sent staple bless mankind. The distinguished Henry W. Grady said: 'I believe that every missionary of the advance agent for Southern cotton.' What a field, then, did Mr. Grady's
